Re: New Part Number for Garage Door Opener Light Bulb

Please note, the part number 39438R for the Genie branded garage door opener light bulb has been replaced with part number 40655R. Some source locations may still have inventory of 39438R readily available, and they should continue those sales. Once inventory of 39438R has been depleted, part number 40655R should be used in its place.

In 2018, light efficiency standards adopted by the California Energy Commission regulated all light bulbs sold in the State of California and prevented our original garage door opener light bulb from being offered for sale there. There were no safety risks associated and it was able to continue to be sold anywhere else in the country with no issues. We have since made upgrades to the garage door opener light bulb to comply with the California standards and for ease of doing business, have consolidated our inventory to one garage door opener light bulb part number (40655R) going forward.

There is no price change with the new part number, as there are only some minor internal component changes to comply with the light color as mandated by the California law. We also made a change to the light appearance going from 3000k to a cooler 4000k. Aesthetically, there are no differences to the physical bulb itself, however one might notice a design/color to the carton.
